AL-KO Enduro X - AL-KO

AL-KO introduced the Enduro trailing arm suspension family back in 2015, specifically designed variants to suit the nature of Australian caravanning. The range includes options for on road touring, semi off-roaders, right up to a long-travel version designed with serious off-road caravans and campers in mind. The Enduro range quickly became one of the best-selling independent suspensions on the market.

AL-KO International - Home

Al-Ko has launched a new independent caravan suspension system. Enduro X introduces a 'clamshell' suspension arm, which Al-Ko says reduces the weight of the suspension system "while maintaining the strength needed for the harsh Australian conditions".

Al-Ko Launches Enduro X - GoRV

Hot on the heels of Al-Ko's Enduro Outback independent suspension, which was launched late last year, the technological giant has again sprung into action, bringing a new, and lighter-duty, independent setup to market. The result is the Al-Ko Enduro Cross Country suspension and we tested it recently under a Nova Pride Platinum.

2016 Review: AL-KO Enduro Cross Country Suspension

AL-KO's shock absorbers, manufactured at the AL-KO plant in Spain, have always been a work of art, in my opinion, but for the Enduro range, the engineering team has enhanced them to suit Aussie conditions even better!
