A soft-top GT Cabrio Concept was designed and developed by Bertone in 2003, it was unveiled to the public on April 6, 2011. The car was a four-seat open-top version of the GT coupé, which Bertone hoped to get built at their own plant. The next-generation Alfa Romeo open-top car was instead built by Pininfarina, using the Brera coupé as a base. This move ultimately led to the bankruptcy of Bertone and it was bought by Fiat who restructured it into its operations.

Alfa said it was taking on the BMW 3-Series Coupe and Mercedes CLK with the GT, though in realistic terms it was probably more of a direct rival to the Peugeot 406 Coupe and Toyota Celica. It was styled by Bertone and was riven with praise at its launch, partly for its devilishly good looks, and partly because it was based on an already proven platform that gave it superb dynamics and handling.

Est-il possible d’oublier l’Alfa Romeo Giulia GT, alias " coupé Bertone " ? Élégante, performante et homogène, cette bella macchina au blason prestigieux représente sans doute l’archétype de la sportive italienne des années 1960 et du début des années 1970. Chargée d’assurer la difficile succession de la mythique Giulietta Sprint, la Giulia GT va être déclinée en de nombreuses versions, décrites avec précision : Giulia Sprint GT et GT Veloce, GT Junior, 1750 puis 2000 GT Veloce, mais aussi cabriolet GTC et GTA/GTAm, destinées à la compétition. Si leur cylindrée, comme leur vocation, différent, ces modèles possèdent cependant le même " cœur ", hérité de la Gioletta : un fabuleux quatre-cylindres " double arbre " en alliage léger, fiable, puissant et mélodieux... Cet ouvrage, le premier sur la Giulia GT dû à un auteur français, comporte une grande quantité d’illustrations inédites. Il repose sur de nombreux témoignages d’acteurs de l’époque et permet de découvrir la carrière exceptionnelle de l’auto en compétition, les campagnes publicitaires qui ont fait date et, enfin, l’histoire de ce modèle à succès sur l’incontournable marché français.

The Alfa Romeo 105 series Spider is one of the most admired drop-head sports cars to come out of Italy. Launched in 1966, its radical new look was not immediately welcomed. As prospective buyers gradually warmed to the model, enhancements were introduced including more powerful engines and higher-spec body and interior fittings. Despite its inauspicious start, production of this much-admired car lasted for twenty-seven years, finally stopping in 1993. Jim Talbot and Andrew Brown pay homage to the 105/115 series Alfa Spider. With over 330 photographs, many specially commissioned, this new book describes the Alfa Romeo company history including its philosophy of incorporating driver appeal into all of its products, resulting in some of the most desirable vehicles of their age; it details the evolution of the 105/115 series through four distinct body styles; lists the technical design specifications and every major version of the Spider and finally, discusses the issues and challenges of finding and owning a classic Spider.
