Rebuilding A Cylinder Head Cylinder Head And Engine Rebuild

Clean the head from old gasket material, carbon buildup, sludge and remaining deposits around the head, coolant and oil passages. Use a gasket scraper, solvent and a wire brush. If the head has hard buildup or sludge on it, it is a better idea to take it to a harder to scrape off or have hard buildup then it is best to bring the cylinder head to an auto shop to have it professionally cleaned.

Step 3 - Inspect the Cylinder Head. Once you are done cleaning the cylinder head, take the time to inspect the cylinder head. Check the cylinder head for any cracks.

replacing valve seals.

Engine oil flows through your engine's head to lubricate the valves and the camshaft if your engine has an overhead cam. There is a seal at the top of each valve stem that keeps the oil in the head rather than allowing it to leak down the valve seal into the combustion chamber.
