All novels tell of individual lives, but in Madeleine Thien's Do Not Say We Have Nothing passing on those tales has extra significance. Set amid the horrors of China's Communist and Cultural revolutions, when failure to conform is a death sentence, the book focuses on two families of musicians - and the price they pay for survival.

October 28, 2016. Do Not Say We Have Nothing is all over the internet right now, perhaps due to its spot as a finalist for the Man Booker Prize, and more recently it has become the 2016 winner of the Governor General's Literary Award for Fiction. Because of all the already-existing fabulous reviews that abound I'm going to try to keep mine short and sweet with a large list of further reading at the end for anyone who wants to know more.
