"Shipfitter's Manual" has been written primarily for the benefit of student shipfitters who at the very outset of their training period realize a dire need for some suitable guide in their study of the trade. Its purpose is to provide the groundwork upon which a student may build for him-self a complete and thorough knowledge of Shipfitting by practical application of its contents. The finest book, course of instruction or staif of instructors in shipfitting can do no more than merely provide the necessary foundation for learning; the true development of a Shipfitter rests entirely with the student through individual resourcefulness, courage and initiative in solving the various trade problems that may arise and the ability to co-ordinate trade studies with practical trade experience.

A much-maligned feature of ancient and medieval political thought is its tendency to appeal to nature to establish norms for human communities. From Aristotle's claim that humans are "political animals" to Aquinas' invocation of "natural law," it may seem that pre-modern philosophers were all too ready to assume that whatever is natural is good, and that just political arrangements must somehow be natural. The papers in this collection show that this assumption is, at best, too crude. From very early, for instance in the ancient sophists' contrast between nomos and physis, there was recognition that political arrangements may be precisely artificial, not natural, and it may be questioned whether even such supposed naturalists as Aristotle in fact adopt the quick inference from "natural" to "good." The papers in this volume trace the complex interrelations between nature and such concepts as law, legitimacy, and justice, covering a wide historical range stretching from Plato and the Sophists to Aristotle, Hellenistic philosophy, Cicero, the Neoplatonists Plotinus and Porphyry, ancient Christian thinkers, and philosophers of both the Islamic and Christian Middle Ages.
